"Big Business" - Yours And Mine

If you are a registered voter in Belle Glade, there is no one who can deny you the right to cast your ballot next Tuesday.

There is a moral and sound business obligation for voters to cast a ballot at every election. Your vote will have meaning to the winner even if you vote for his opponent. Our commissioners want to know that the community is interested and keeping informed on the city's business — that the citizens CARE what takes place at official commissioner meetings and that they realize the problems and needs of our community and how they are handled — and why.

We hear a lot about our city government being "Big Business." The "Big Business" is yours and mine... and of more importance than its size it is its "intimacy." This Big Business concerns our day to day living, our pocket book, our safety, and the influences which shape the character of our children. It is closely related to our happiness, even if we close our eyes and refuse to admit that WE are responsible for the way this business is handled.

VOTE NEXT TUESDAY!

Civic Clubs And The Community

"Discover and serve the needs of your community. Be concerned with youth, with employment and education, with health, with safety, with respect for law, with home and solidarity. Serve the needs of your own area." Thus the president of one international club enjoins the membership.

Belle Glade is blessed with several civic clubs and all of them, in one way or another, do an effective job of serving the community. Examples after example could be cited to show their contributions.

We suspect that many individual members of these clubs do not fully appreciate what their membership means to themselves, their club and to the area.

Are these clubs exclusive? The answer is both yes and no. They are exclusive only to the extent that membership is chosen to represent the community because no one club can include everyone.

Methods of selection are intended to unite a group of people who can effectively work together for the welfare and betterment of the entire community.

"Look beyond your own borders for opportunities to help world wide." Continues the above quotation.

Our communities are so large and complex that the old style "Town Meeting" can no longer serve as a training ground for democracy. Democracy is kept alive and flourishes in this country largely through the voluntary organizations of our country of which civic clubs are outstanding examples.

SENSING THE NEWS

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

WITHOUT A FIGHT

The death of the once great New York Herald Tribune has caused concern far beyond the metropolis of New York City where it was published.

A few months ago, The Trib was read by more than a million persons a day. The company that published it gave employment to hundreds of people — editors, reporters, advertising men, printers and a variety of clerical help. Today, The Trib is no more.

The common place saying is that it was killed by a strike. So it was, in an immediate sense. Strikers, with no sense of moderation, made demands that ultimately destroyed a famous newspaper. For many decades, the New York newspaper had been considered one of the leading dailies in the United States. But there was more to the New York Herald Tribune's death than the final, fatal strike.

The Trib died not simply of one labor dispute but of the climate of opinion which permits a union to silence the press in the nation's largest city and to paralyze other types of essential industry. New York is a city ruled by strikers. Longshoremen can call a strike, and the entire New York waterfront becomes like a ghost town. A comparative handful of subway workers walk off the job, and the metropolis is deprived of vital transportation.

The nation — and New York State, for that matter — has not been without individual leaders and organizations striving to wake the American people to the terrible danger posed by monopoly unionism. But The New York Herald Tribune, which was nominally Republican, gave no support in recent years to the conservative movement. It scorned Barry Goldwater when he ran for President. Its most recent hero was John Lindsay, the "liberal" congressman turned mayor of the Big City.

Mr. Lindsay was opposed to state right to work laws. He bragged that New York City was a "union" city. Yet he received the active support of The Trib. One wonders: didn't the owners of the Tribune realize what was coming? Didn't they know that their property couldn't survive with "liberalism" and big unionism dominant in city and state? Why weren't they working for their paper's survival by the best possible way — supporting the conservative cause, that is? And why, at the last, did The Trib suddenly abandon the fight for its own existence and fold without trying to publish in defiance of the unions?

Other papers have fought the unions, and some of them have won. The public can understand a newspaper being besieged by union bosses. It can realize that there is more than one way to gag the press. But the readers of The Trib were never given a chance to rally around in a time of crisis. The Tribune gave up without a struggle.

But then it had given up the fight against Big Government years ago. Its praise was reserved for those who want to make government bigger, who wanted to restrict the states and communities. It criticized communities threatened by practitioners of civil disobedience. It jumped on the liberal bandwagon. But now The New York Herald Tribune is gone. Its "liberalism" didn't save it in the end; it helped kill it.

There's a lesson here. Some people in our society look at the power of the "liberals" and say "If I can't lick them, I will join them." But it doesn't work. A newspaper that turns its back on conservative principles is turning its back on its own well-being. Companies that are fearful of having their officers join conservative groups or that are unwilling to support conservative business groups aren't sparing themselves in the long run. On the contrary, they are weakening the overall defense of free enterprise in the United States. They also are leaving themselves exposed to the increasingly arrogant demands of the union bosses.

In this life, it doesn't pay to run away from struggle or to abandon sound principles for what seems momentary gain. This is the real lesson of the now defunct New York Herald Tribune. Had it become the press voice of real conservatism in New York City, it would not have surrendered without a struggle. Loyal conservatives would have bent every effort to keep it alive and on the streets. Indeed, had The Trib chosen conservatism instead of "liberalism," New York City today might have a conservative mayor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letter to the Editor:

Monday night when the now famous prowler visited Wedgworth Road there was only one policeman in each of the two patrol cars that came to the unsuccessful "rescue."

As it happened, while one policeman was looking around to back up in response to the call of the other the prowler ran across the road in front of him, unseen. The other policeman was shot at, much to his stunner. Both would have benefitted by a second rider.

It seems the department would have provided one since the prowler has established his visits on Wedgworth Road.

Armed and Alarmed

Editors note: The police department has four patrol cars which are necessary for covering the City of Belle Glade but only four patrolmen to assign to these cars. On nine shifts each week a second patrolman rides without pay. These extra patrolmen are known as Auxiliary Police because they serve without pay and are volunteers from the community.

Perhaps Armed and Alarmed would volunteer for this service and particularly until the prowler is caught. The community gets the kind of police service it is willing to pay for. One way to pay is to offer your services.

Dear Editor: Thank you for the very excellent speech by Mr. McCormick given to the Holy N:me Council.

It was nice of you to publish it in The Belle Glade Herald.

Sincerely
Grace Wilson

MAKE THE DOORBELLS RING

Uncle Dan From Doolie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Zeke Grubb's preacher came by the store Saturday night and set with the fellers for a spell and he was a little upset over certain matters.

He announced the Great Society was working on a plan to improve on the Bible and the Lord's word and he aimed to get a letter off to several of them. Congressmen as soon as they got back from their vacation junkies and he could find 'em.

The good Parson reported them NASA space fellers had awarded $125,000 to the Boeing aircraft company to study ways of making the sun shine at night. Furthermore, he said, they had given Westinghouse another $125,000 for the same project to make certain they get quick results.

I don't understand these space items, Mister Editor, but the preacher was explaining they planned to orbit a big satellite to reflect the rays from the sun on to the dark side of the earth.

He said it was wrote very plain in the Bible, in the first chapter and 4th and 5th verses of Genesis, that "God divided the light from the darkness," and "God called the light Day and the darkness He called Night."

The good Parson told the fellers he had been going along with the Great Society the best he could, but the Lord meant fer it to be dark at night and light in daytime and when they git to messing with the Lord's handiwork he was voting the straight Republican ticket next time.

Ed Doolittle was of the opinion them NASA folks wasn't actual hoping to turn night into day, that they was spending that $250,000 to keep in style with a heap of other government agencies. Fer instint, said Ed, he had saw where a university called Georgia Tech in Atlanta had got a $8,000 grant to study the tadpole.

Bug Hookum, butted in to say we got a heap of things to be thankful fer, that it could have been a grant to study the elephant and if a tadpole cost $8,907, the taxpayer would prob'ly be hit fer about $200,000 on a elephant deal.

All the fellers, Mister Editor, was agreed with the good Parson that the Great Society ain't got no business messing with the Book of Genesis. One of the fellers, and I ain't going to call his name at this time, allowed as how the Book of Genesis was his favorite chapter in the Bible. He said it was reported in Genesis that the Lord created the sun, the moon, the earth, and when He got overthinking created that was needed, woman was created last. And incidental, Mister Editor, this feller owes me $5 and if he don't pay me I aim to blackmail him with his old lady.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

From Ellen G. Goodpasture, Anita, Iowa: I remember, long ago, when farmer's wives churned butter and brought it to the store for trade. They kept it in little wooden boxes; when you went to buy, the clerk would break off a piece of the box and taste the butter. Sometimes the would quietly say, "You wouldn't want that woman's butter." We saved old rubbers, old rags, and seams from clothing, and once in the spring and fall a man came around buying such stuff to sell to companies to make paper. We used that extra cash to buy our sewing thread.

When we got a load of cobs there was usually lots of shucks clinging to them; we saved these and put them in a sack for a mattress; however it did not have inner springs.

The minister was staying with us, but went away one day; my mother thought he wouldn't be back for supper, so we made mush. While we were eating, he came in and exclaimed, "Why don't you have mush and milk when I am here?"

One of us came home from school singing a song the teacher had taught us about "Gathering nuts in May." My father always called her the teacher who gathered nuts in May.

Insurance Rate Changes Approved By Com. Williams

State Treasurer-Insurance Commissioner Broward Williams approved three requests for insurance rate changes this month, two for homeowners and one for nondrinking drivers.

The three filings were made by the Multi-Line Insurance Rating Bureau, Nationwide Mutual Fire Insurance Co., and Preferred Risk Mutual Insurance Co. Multi-Line received an overall increase of 6 percent and a mandatory deductible of $50 on all claims under $500. Commissioner Williams said the deductible would eliminate many nuisance and maintenance claims if the homeowner had to pay the first $50. Above $500 in claims, he said, the company would pay the full amount.

Without the deductible, Commissioner Williams said Multi-Line would have sought a 25 percent increase overall.

Under the approved change, 67 percent of the policyholders would receive no change in rate, 3 percent would receive reductions, and 30 percent would receive increases of up to 22 percent.

Nationwide Mutual received approval of its plan to set up differentials on homeowner policies, authorizing some increases and some decreases in rates. Nevertheless, the company's net income under the change would remain the same.

Under the plan, policies on homes valued at under $10,000 and over $30,000 would receive no rate increases, and policies on homes valued between $10,000 and $30,000 would receive a 5 percent increase in liability, a $1 increase in comprehensive, and a 50-cent increase in uninsured motorist coverage.

Because Preferred Risk insures only nondrinkers, few people qualify. The company writes only $250,000 worth of business in Florida.

Approval of the increase left Preferred Risk coverage still approximately 15 percent below the standard rate level. The total increase was estimated at $28,000.

Bids to develop the site are expected to be opened this fall. Initial development

John Stretch, FCD recreation director, citing past experience with private enterprise developments in the Everglades, recently informed Okechobee County interests that bids vary and the best offer may not be limited to initial development but encompass long-range plans.

Modern Teaching Aids Help 4-H Girls Learn To Sew

Just about every 4-H girl at some time or another has tried her hand at sewing. Miss Mary Ann Dean, home economist for the National 4-H Service Committee, and in the process a sewing machine has been used.

The difference between turning out a garment with ease or with difficulty, said Miss Dean, "is often the difference between knowing and not knowing how to use the sewing machine."

New manuals explaining YOUR SEWING MACHINE have just been published by The Singer Company for 4-H clothing leaders and members. For the last 12 years, Singer has sponsored the national 4-H clothing leader course on proper use of the sewing machine.

Special attention is given to teaching beginners from 9 to 11 years old. Mothers are urged to observe the progress made by their young daughters in the club project so that they will confidently permit them to use the precious sewing machine. More experienced 4-H members serve as junior leaders and help younger members learn the basic steps in using a sewing machine at home.

"Sewing requires far more than manual dexterity; it demands knowledge and discipline to progress step by step toward a goal," states the leaders' manual.

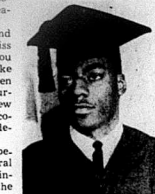

It is this knowledge and discipline, points out Miss Dean, that has enabled thousands of 4-H girls to make and model prize-winning ensembles and to help refurbish their homes with new curtains, draperies, slip covers, pillows and other decorative items.

Miss Dean along with specialists from the Federal Extension Service and Singer collaborated on the manual.

"Public's Buying Intentions" Said Reason For Census Survey

A scientifically selected sample of local households will take part in a nationwide survey this month to enable the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, to estimate the American public's intentions to buy automobiles.

Piggyback Traffic Sets New Record

Piggyback shipments continue to make new records on U. S. railroads. More than 23,900 railroad flatcars are now in piggyback service—an increase of 2,800 during the past year. The flatcar fleet in 1965 alone originated over one million "turns around" three times as fast as the average freight car, showing how better utilization of equipment generates more transport capacity.

Nearly all these flatcars are in the fleet of Trailer Train Company which celebrated its tenth anniversary in March, 1966. Trailer Train is owned by the FCC and 41 other railroads and one freight forwarder.

FE's gain in piggyback business is illustrated by shipments of perishables during the season just ended. For the 1965-66 season, July through June, the railroad handled 5,574 trailers of perishables, just a little more than double the 2,718 trailers carried in the comparable 1964-65 period.

Sept. Better Breakfast Month

The Board of County Commissioners of Palm Beach County has proclaimed September as "Better Breakfast Month" in Palm Beach County.
The County Extension home economist, other home economists, school and county health workers are sponsoring the Better Breakfast Campaign in the county, according to Miss Mary Todd, Palm Beach County Extension home economist.
The proclamation, signed by George V. Warren, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and County Commissioners E. R. Van Kessel, Lake Lovel, Edward Bandlow, and E. W. "Bud" Weaver, points out that the health and well-being of the citizens of Palm Beach County to a large degree depend upon good nutrition. It states that thousands of children and adults of Palm Beach County start the day with "no fuel." Nutrition authorities agree that a good breakfast, including protein, helps one to be sharper in his thinking and actions during the morning, preventing that let-down feeling, the proclamation says.
The Commissioners call upon all Palm Beach County residents to take advantage of their own county's Better Breakfast Campaign and the nutritional programs sponsored by the Extension home economics agent and all home economists who are interested in promoting better health countywide.

Monstrous Walking Dragline Being Assembled For Duty Along Shore Of Lake Okeechobee

Belle Glade, Fla. SEPT. 8, 1966

MONSTROUS MACHINE — A huge dragline, with a 200-foot boom and 24-yard bucket, now is being assembled on the northeast shore of Lake Okeechobee. When put into operation in about a month, the "drag" will be the largest ever used on a Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District project. It will help to accelerate construction of a section of the Herbert Hoover Dike between St. Lucie Canal at Port Mayaca and Chancy Bay, seven and one-half miles to the north. (FCD Photo by Jim Davidson)

A walking dragline, with huge banjo-shaped shoes, should spell sweet music to Reynolds and Smith, Inc., of Moore Haven, and to the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District.

The "drag" which weighs in at approximately 1,200 tons, will be the largest ever used on a water management project within the 18-county, 15,500-square-mile Flood Control District.

It now is being assembled for super-digging duty along the northeast shore of Lake Okeechobee near Chancy Bay. Contractors expect to have the dragline operational by late September. It will be used to gulp monstrous bites of soil to help erect one of two final sections of Hoover Dike.

The dragline, manufactured at a cost in excess of $1 million, by Page Engineering of Chicago at the order of contractor Luke Smith, features a 24-yard bucket which swings from the end of a 200-foot boom. At one fell swoop, the bucket can scoop enough earth to fill an average-sized room. Empty, the bucket weighs about 19 tons.

"Walking the drag is accomplished by a sliding motion," said Ed Smith, district superintendent of the contracting firm. He explained that the dragline actually "walks backward" with the two banjo-shaped shoes striking the ground at the rear of center to slide the base of the machine seven feet at a time. The "walking" gear is operated by two 18-inch diameter shafts.

A spokesman for Page Engineering said the electric drive system, which involves the charging of spray dust particles with either a positive or negative charge of electricity as it leaves the nozzle of the dusting machine. Most of us have seen the hair of an individual literally stand on end when the person permitted a high voltage low amp current to pass through his body. This is because the electric charge of each hair causes it to move away from its neighboring hair. Dust so charged has a tendency to move away from other dust particles of like charge and move toward material with an opposite charge.

As dust charged particles escape from the nozzle they separate from other particles and tend to move in a well distributed pattern to the leaves of the plant which is being dusted. Results from one study indicated that 30 pounds of charged dust was as effective as 40 pounds of uncharged dust which amounts to a 25% savings in material.

A Field Evaluation Report has been prepared on the process by T. W. Casselman, C. Welburg, W. G. Genung and Paul L. Thayer but further tests are required before recommendations can be made to commercial vegetable producers. Indications are that the small amount of electricity required can be provided by a storage battery in which the charge is maintained by a generator on the power unit used to pull the sprayer.

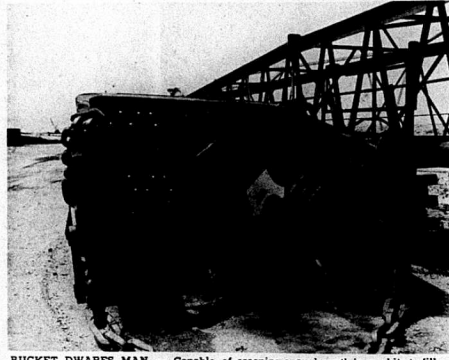

The occasion will mark the first time that more than one person has served as toastmaster during the Association's convention which draws over 1,500 agriculturally-related people annually to the South Florida resort community.

Slimnastics
Classes Begin
Saturday A. M.

A class in Slimnastics will be held beginning Saturday, Sept. 10 at 9:30 a. m. in the Community Clubhouse in McDonald City Park.

Mrs. Geraldine Robinson, who is assisting in organizing the class announced there will be a small fee for the course. Mrs. Rheta Cunningham will be the instructor.

On Saturday an exercise or will be demonstrated by a salesman from West Palm Beach. Anyone interested may call Mrs. Robinson at 996-3400 or 996-5803 or Mrs. Cunningham at 996-5430 for further details.

BUCKET DWARFS MAN — Capable of scooping enough earth in one bite to fill an average-sized room, the big bucket of a mammoth dragline soon will be attached to cables swinging from a 200-foot boom. The "walking" dragline, which moves backward by using large steel shoes, will help to build a levee now under construction on the northeast shore of Lake Okeechobee as part of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control Project. (FCD Photo by Jim Davidson)

40 miles at the rate of one mile every eight hours.

Three diesel engines, with a combined 1,700 horsepower output, plus a special electrical system, provide the operating power for the 80-foot-long, 60-foot-high dragline.

The monstrous machine was specially designed to be barged through 30-foot boat locks," said Smith, indicating that his firm plans to bid on many future contracts offered by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps handles all construction within the Flood Control District and the FCD generally assumes operation and maintenance responsibilities under the federal-state-district project.

The Reynolds and Smith dragline, which is being assembled by a 12-man crew that already has worked two months on the job, will be used under sub-contract with Ronlee, Inc., of Miami, general contractor for construction of a seven and one-half mile levee between the St. Lucie Canal at Port Mayaca and Chancy Bay to the north.

Ronlee earned the Corps of Engineers contract a year ago with a bid of $2.2 million. The scheduled completion date for the big levee (L-47) is next May. Another 10 1/2 mile section of the dike is being built to a height of 25 to 30 feet from Chancy Bay to Hubbs Slough, a few miles southeast of Okeechobee, under a $1.8 million contract.

FFVA Annual Aid To Labor Recruiting

ORLANDO — An 80-page green-covered manual prepared by the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association is one of the newest tools being used to recruit harvest labor for the Sunshine State.

The volume was prepared by George Som, assistant manager of the FFVA Farm Labor Department, and by Roy H. Lawson, FFVA field representative in Lake Worth. Copies are being sent to employment officials in Florida's labor supply states.

The manual relates distances to Florida, various harvesting methods, for all Florida crops including vegetables, citrus, sugar cane, tropical fruits, and lists general information about accommodations and benefits provided for the harvesting personnel.

They are planning to leave next weekend to take their daughter Mary Kate to Tam from Chancy Bay to Hubbs Slough, a few miles southeast of Okeechobee, under a $1.8 million contract.

QUOTATION OF THE WEEK

At the same time that contractors were unwinding their ball of string to outline the new library building, Mrs. Bettie Harris was asked by one of her library patrons if she actually believed the city was going to get a new library.

Mrs. Harris' reply: "I've been a doubting Thomas all my life, now I believe we're going to get it!"

Mrs. Harris, and Mrs. Howard Bartine, staff members at the Library, have been pleased this summer with the services of Russell Tenet, the seventeen year old boy who has served as a student library assistant during the summer rush months. He has proved a devoted, able worker, according to these ladies.

Library Board member, Curtis Thompson, Jr., has agreed to serve as chairman of a committee which will work to formulate a statement of policy for the Library. The imminent reality of a new library building makes such a statement necessary, the Board feels. Mrs. Bettie Harris, Mrs. James Ball, and Mrs. Richard Shoemaker will work with him.

Mr. Cecil Beach, Director of Libraries in Tampa, has been invited to serve as an advisor on furnishing the new building.

Mr. Beach, whom Mrs. Harris and members of the Board first met at the Institute on Library Planning held in Clearwater last Spring, has served several times in this capacity for new library buildings.

The Library is interested in locating a group of talented, civic minded Belle Glade citizens, who would like to work together as a committee on exhibits, when the new library is complete.

Any interested person who is qualified and willing to help with planning and arranging monthly exhibits of ethnic, educational, or local interest is asked to contact the Librarian.

Some of the subjects of new books at the Library are preparing foods for the home freezer, adopting children, and the advantages of a career in conservation. Even if none of these topics are of particular interest to you, the Library invites you to come in and browse among the shelves. You will be certain to find subjects there that DO interest you.

Conducted by a representative of The Council's Headquarters Staff, this meeting will review basic teaching techniques and supply each instructor with the information on the course that will be needed to lead the class. The Council, better known as LUTC, has provided this training program since 1947. Some 24,000 students were enrolled throughout the 50 states and Puerto Rico in 1,339 classes during the 1965-66 school year. The course is sponsored here by the Everglades Life Underwriters Association with the cooperation of LUTC's national Headquarters in Washington, D. C.

County Commissioners Corner

E. W. "BUD" WEAVER

County Commissioner District No. 5

District 5 has a lot of road work to complete before the start of our Harvest Season. However, our Road crew, under capable leadership of Superintendent Charles Maxson, is trying to maintain a schedule that will see most of the road work completed on time. These men are a credit to our County, they do a very good job for you, the taxpayer.

The County Commission, sitting now as a Board of Equalization, has for the first time, the responsibility of really functioning as an Equalizing Board.

The County Tax Assessor has always been required by State Statute to correct errors of "omission" and "commission" and such corrections are handled throughout the entire year. This year, the Tax Assessor has the responsibility of assessing at 100% of "fair market value," and the Board of Equalization has the responsibility of seeing that the assessments are spread on an equitable basis, so that each taxpayer carries an equal share of the total tax burden, and (everyone will agree that it is becoming an ever increasing burden). The fine "legal lines" that determine "what" is equal, has caused the Board of Equalization no end of concern. First in the lists of "do's" and "don'ts" is that the Board can "equalize," but cannot "appraise."

Since Tuesday, Sept. 6th, at 5:00 p. m. was the deadline for receiving petitions for equalization, it is now possible to estimate how long the Board must sit. Right now it looks like October 1st, is the earliest date that this Board can complete its examination of these petitions. Meanwhile, the other duties of the Commissioners must be taken care of in between these daily meetings. Speaking for myself, it's going to be a rough month.

I hardly think these ladies need an introduction. Everyone who owns a car and has to purchased a tag (and who doesn't this day and time) will recognize Mrs. Edwina Young, Mrs. Patsy Hawkins and Mrs. Kathryn Swain, Deputy Tax Collectors of the Tax Collectors Office. Their duties, other than selling tags, include: collecting for occupational and beverages licenses, real estate taxes, personal property taxes; handling title work and boat registrations.

EDWINA YOUNG

Mrs. Young has been with this office since 1958. She and her husband, George, live in Belle Glade and have two children, Jane, a Senior at the University of Florida and "Chappy," who will be leaving for the Air Force on September 8.

PATSY HAWKINS

Mrs. Hawkins came to the Tax Collectors Office in 1959. She and her husband, Paul, reside on S. E. Second Street, Belle Glade. They have one son, Jeff, who is a second grader at Pahokee Day School.

KATHRYN SWAIN

Mrs. Swain has been with the office since 1962. Her husband, Hubert, is Parts Manager for Coastal Motors. They have two daughters, Denise and Tina, who are students in Belle Glade schools.

ANN & TED SHERIDAN LEAVING — We shouldn't even allow Ted's picture in the paper as he is responsible for our being robbed of a valued member of our staff. Ann will be leaving this weekend with her husband and two children to make their new home in Greenville, South Carolina. (You'll be missing her sweet voice and courteous service, as will we.) Ann has been a "right hand" in varied front office departments for more than two years. Ted, who has been employed by Glades Correctional Institution since December, 1962, is now associated with Rinsched-Mason Paint Company as field representative. This week he began training course duties prior to his official assignment which requires residency in South Carolina. Best of luck to both of you, and Frank and Angie, too!

75 Growth For Glades In 10 Years Reported By Utility Co. Manager

In order to take care of customer growth in the Glades area the Florida & Light company has made many improvements over a 30 year period according to Curtis Chase, Glades District Manager. A review of customer growth, which reflects population increases, reveals that the number of customers has increased from 840 to 1935 in 1965. Thus there were more than ten times as many customers over a 30 year period. Actually the customer growth for the last ten years shows an increase of 75%. It is interesting to note that the statistics for all of Florida reveal that population growth of Florida was 59% for the ten years ending in 1965.

Of course this customer growth has required the construction of many more electric distribution lines, with additional transformers, throughout the area to provide increased service to existing and new customers. A comparison of capacity requirements for 1935 was included in these additional customers are several sugar mills, some of which require a quantity of power greater than the total in District requirement in 1935. In 1935, service was rendered the Glades area from Substation in Pahokee, which reduces the Transmission Line voltage to Distribution Line voltage level for delivery to customers. Since then, additional Substations have been added at Belle Glade, Clewiston, Port Mayaca and at South Bay. Construction has been started on an additional Substation northeast of Belle Glade and will be started soon. The improvement of service continuity resulting from this extensive construction and a 25% reduction of the average cost of the residential kWh in the last ten years to 2.1c, which is lower than the average for the United States. All to Pahokee, which was later extended to Belle Glade, despite the rising costs of New transmission lines ex-mot everything else put in in four directions — to chased.
